

Warren's Song, Pt. 21

Bracket

I'm spending every night
Fucking up days
Telling all the lies used yesterday
I'd rather be sad and miserable
Than be by myself

Now forever is so near
Love is only true
Letting go of fear time captures you
You'd rather be sad and miserable than be by yourself

I've turned my back on the light
And turned on to you
I've turned my back on myself
And turned on to you
I've turned my back on happiness
And turned on to you

Age filling up with years
Unforgiving
A sullen day is near
For the living
I'd rather be sad and miserable
Than be by myself

Now forever is so near
Love is only true
Letting go of fear
Time captures you
We'd rather be sad and miserable
Than be by ourselves

I've turned my back on the light
And turned on to you
I've turned my back on myself
And turned on to you
I've turned my back on happiness
And turned on to you

I break my promises to everyone
I am a problem and solution
Everybody wants to be someone
I can see
I can hear
But will I ever feel anything

I've turned my back on the light
And turned on to you
I've turned my back on myself
And turned on to you
I've turned my back on happiness
And turned on to you