Brand New Sin

What makes you think that what you will is always right? Constantly controlling all in sight There's a side that you don't see Not taking no for an answer

Read between the lines For your fallen angel Take this message home and fly Shackled down cuz it really don't matter

Where do you get off thinking you're high and mighty and superi or? You walk all over all that I hold dear And it's a shame how long I've endured it.

Here at the end now that I could never trust again It doesn't seem right with you and everywhere I've been

Who would've thought your walls are falling of all things? That outfit you were born in doesn't hide your wings.

But go on and fly Fly away from me.

Fly