

There You Are

Brandon Jenner

A proud man doesn't hear you
It only matters how he feels
A used man don't have much to say
Tires gone, he's riding rough on wheels

Neither knows what peace feels like
Chasing what is right around the bend
Chalk it up to, "Well, that's life"
Happiness hiding in the wind

Slow your horses down
Wherever you go, there you are

Ground is cracking under all of us
The river stopping short of home
Time has got us chasing our own tails
We run around in circles on our own

Close your eyes and hear your mind
Let yourself be still and you'll transcend
Those little thoughts are the biggest lies
A con man disguised as your best friend

Slow your horses down
Wherever you go, there you are
Lay your body down
Whatever you know, that's who you are

Those age-old lines in the mirror
Them scars have never been so bold
But beauty in the eye of another
Is forever cold

Slow your horses down
Wherever you go, there you are
Lay your body down
Whatever you know, that's who you are
