Beautiful Lonely

Brett Eldredge

You don't have to fake it
I know it hurts
You can be honest right now
And love's complicated
That's not your fault
You regret giving your heart
But you'd probably do it again

But when the stars fall outta your eyes
Dark shade of gray paints over your sky
You're still beautiful lonely
Even when you're falling apart
And one day you'll know
That your tears will start catching the light
Nothing I say could fix it tonight
But you're still beautiful lonely
Don't listen to your broken heart

'Cause you're so beautiful lonely
Beautiful lonely

You're flipping through vinyls
Came in from the rain
You're trying to soundtrack all those nights
That you can't explain

Oh, when the stars fall outta your eyes
Dark shade of gray paints over your sky
You're still beautiful lonely
Even when you're falling apart
And one day you'll know
That your tears will start catching the light
Nothing I say could fix it tonight
But you're still beautiful lonely
Don't listen to your broken heart

You're so beautiful lonely
Beautiful lonely
Beautiful lonely, lonely, lonely
Beautiful lonely, eh

And someday you're gonna wake up when all the fog has left
Sunny side up breakfast on the right side of the bed
And you'll think happiness is easy, why'd it take up all that time?
I know right now it's hard to find
Oh, it's so damn hard to find

But when the stars fall outta your eyes
Dark shade of gray paints over your sky
You're still beautiful lonely
Even when you're falling apart
Oh, and one day you'll know
That your tears will start catching the light
Nothing I say could fix it tonight
But you're still beautiful lonely
Don't listen to your broken heart

```
'Cause you're so beautiful lonely
Beautiful lonely
Beautiful lonely, lonely
Beautiful lonely
```

'Cause you're so beautiful lonely
Beautiful lonely
Beautiful lonely, lonely
Beautiful lonely