

We Were That Song

Brett Kissel

We were the wild and the free in the wind
We were the backseat, leaning in
We were the running wild open in the headlights
Hearts on fire in the midnight
We were the slow and the dance in the dust
Jack and Diane with the radio up
We were living the line about loving and learnin'
The falling, the flying, that summertime thing

We were the song on the radio playing
We were the words the singer was singing, yeah
We were the oh, we were the hey
That made you wanna sing along, yeah
We were, we were
We were, we were that song

We were the good and the bye in the rain
We were the lonesome, like a train
We were the let go, we were the heart broke
We didn't know that it would end this way
We were the almost, yeah but not quite
We were the steel guitars that cry
And the line about loving and leaving
And lonely in the might-have-been
The might-have-been

We were the song on the radio playing
We were the words the singer was singing, yeah
We were the oh, we were the hey
That made you wanna sing along, yeah
We were, we were
We were, we were that song, yeah

And it goes oh
And it goes oh

We were heard-it-and-I had-to-call
We were the feeling that you can't shake off
That I was a fool and you were the one
How did I ever let you get so gone?

We were the song on the radio, playing
We were the words the singer was singing, yeah
We were the oh, we were the hey
That made you wanna sing along, yeah
We were, we were
We were, we were that song

And it goes oh
And it goes oh

We were the song on the radio, playing
We were the words the singer was singing, yeah
We were the oh, we were the hey
That made you wanna sing along, yeah
We were, we were
We were, we were that song

We were, we were
We were, we were that song

And it goes oh
