

On the edge of tomorrow, I'm
Thinking 'bout years we borrowed
Another close call
And now I can't fall asleep alone
Check my phone, but it's 3 o'clock in the morning
I know you're probably fine
I'm still terrified

If our time runs out, I'm not sure
I can try to weather the storm
Cuz there's not enough bottles to drown out the noise
Replaying messages to hear your voice
If I wake up next to the ocean
I'd feel you here for a moment
The waves will keep crashing, like they always do
But forever without you's a different shade of blue

Hourglass, full of quicksand
At hospitals, holding your hand
Rehearsing our final words
Can't prepare you for that kind of hurt

If our time runs out, I'm not sure
I can try to weather the storm
Cuz there's not enough bottles to drown out the noise
Replaying messages to hear your voice
If I wake up next to the ocean
I'd feel you here for a moment
The waves will keep crashing, like they always do
But forever without you's a different shade of blue
Blue
Blue
Blue
Blue
Blue...

Forever without you's a different shade of blue
Blue
Blue
Blue
Blue
Blue...

If our time runs out, I'm not sure
I can try to weather the storm
Cuz there's not enough bottles to drown out the noise
Replaying messages to hear your voice
If I wake up next to the ocean
I'd feel you here for a moment
The waves will keep crashing, like they always do
But forever without you's a different shade of blue