

There's No Biz Like Show Biz

Broadway

A night of awkward silence leaves a swelling in my head
So this will be the last time that I try burning at both ends
A story believable, but I know you all too well
You can say you don't remember, maybe this will ring a bell
Solo artist figurines, and centerfolds in magazines
An alibi that let you down, offended to say the least
Well, I saw how you faked it, and you never made it
So let's start your little game, cause I've already played

So you think you know, but you don't
I know you think you know but you don't
We are but puppets built to sing, led by amateurs with strings I'm not waiting
They did it again, I knew it was them
It's just another disaster I won't be part of

The most insulting words that I've heard
From the lips of who I can't hurt
But the beauty of the twist, is I just can't get enough of this

So you better watch what you say
Cause you're the same way
It's not like you to let me have my way

We'll do this on our own

So you think you know, but you don't
I know you think you know but you don't
We are but puppets built to sing,
led by amateurs with strings I'm not waiting
They did it again, I knew it was them
It's just another disaster I won't be part of

Why don't you come out and say it? (just say it)
I know you want to

"Dance, puppet!! Dance, puppet!! Dance puppet!! DANCE!!"

We'll do this on our own
