It Started All Over Again

Brook Benton

Standing in the crowd of people
Waiting for the elevator
When someone said, "Mary, I'll see you later"
Well, the name rang a bell
But I couldn't tell
If she was the same lady I once knew
So I turned and looked around
To my surprise what I found
Was the woman who was my first love

And it started all over again
The feeling within
Just as I took one look
Right then, it started all over again

My mind start flashing back in time
When our hearts were one
And together we had so much fun
So I walked up to her real slow
Smiled and said, "Hello"
And she looked so good, my feeling had to show
All over my face
The feeling of love had taken place
And deep inside, I felt the same as before

Yes, it started all over again
The feeling within
And just as I took one look
Right then, it started all over again

And it started all over again
The feeling within
Just as I took one look
Right then, it started all over again
Ooh, it started all over again
The feeling within
Just as I took that one look
Right then, it started all over again
And it started all over again
The feeling within
Just as I took one look
Right then, it started all over again
And it started all over again