Brutal Truth

"Hell remains a very democratic place in most religions, with unbaptized stillborns thrown in the same lake of fire with serial killers and child rapists. What you call monsters are superior forms, beyond your understanding. Isn't a man of genius a monster, like a tiger or a spider, like all individuals who live beyond social lies. It isn't dying that's sad; it's living when you're not happy. The sexual organ, far from being an object of infamy and image of impurity, was a god. I took atrocious delight in accusing myself, making myself uglier, more of an outcast and blacker than I was. Have you become senseless - as senseless as a member of the majority? We live under the laws of war. It consists of massacring as many men as you can in the least possible time. Hospitality versus hostility?"
