

Pieces

Bry

Last night I slept alone
And the bed felt so big that I got lost
And no one heard my cry
I woke up hugging air
My father walked in thinking his son, was still in love with life

'Cause no one knows I'm in pieces
I've enough weaknesses without a broken heart
But I can't lie around
'Cause self pity is just bound to get me nowhere
And that's not where I'll find you

Tonight I'll feel assured
In the company of friends and I'll proclaim:
"Who needs love anyway?"
But I'll wake up in a war
In a trench that's so deep, so terrifying
Only love can save the day

'Cause no one knows I'm in pieces
I've enough weaknesses without a broken heart
But I can't lie around
'Cause self pity is just bound to get me nowhere
And that's not where I'll find you