

Inside Her Head

Bryce Savage

'Cause she's been through some things that are hard to forget

And she lives inside of her head

Thoughts are stuck on loop while she's lying in bed (While she's lying in bed)

And she had to learn to forgive

'Cause she's been through some things that are hard to forget (Some things that are hard to forget)

She just wanna be left in her room alone

She's so tired of looking at things on her phone

The noise gets too loud when she's the only one home

And she just wanna let go, she just wanna let go

And she's got those eyes

Filled up, so bright

She dreams, she fights

She hates long nights

Her thoughts they hurt, imagery of the worst

So she tries at night to work through it inside

And she lives inside of her head

Thoughts are stuck on loop while she's lying in bed (While she's lying in bed)

And she had to learn to forgive

'Cause she's been through some things that are hard to forget (Some things that are hard to forget)

Baby, don't let go

You can make it out of the darkness, oh

'Cause you got a good soul

Don't let anybody take it from you no

I know it gets hard though

But what're all the highs without all the lows

The devil never says no

So push away the thoughts that make you wanna let go

She shouts out, but there's nobody around for the sound

To hear now, she can feel her heart beating it pounds

She's held down, stuck in bed, while the demon surrounds

A silhouette of the thing she fears the most it surmounts

Her mind is filled with things

That she can't seem to forget

She wants to spread her wings

So she had to learn to forgive

Herself for everything, that happened to her back then

It took some time to be, comfortable in her skin

And she lives inside of her head

And she had to learn to forgive

'Cause she's been through some things that are hard to forget (Some things that are hard to forget)
