

The Color Of Justice

Bumblefoot

Good luck in the afterlife - don't forget to bring your suntan lotion
Good luck in the afterlife - don't forget to bring an ice cool ocean
Thank you for the vision of truth - you've shown me the world like I'd never seen How right and wrong are clear as day - but the color of justice is green

Good luck in the afterlife - don't forget to bring what ya got paid to Good luck in the afterlife - don't forget the pictures of those poisoned by you Thank you for making me stare into the dark and focus on the ugliest scene Where right and wrong are too clear to see and all you're looking for is green

Good luck in the afterlife - don't forget to rot in your empty shell
Good luck in the afterlife - don't forget the way you made this life Hell Thank you for the taste of blood pressed from the life between my teeth
When right and wrong were chewed away - and you left the taste of grief

Remember all the people you showed no love to.
Remember all the people you drove to hate you.
Remember all the people you were a disease to.
Remember all the people you wouldn't say please to.
Remember all the people that offered compassion.
Remember all the people that you turned your back on.
Remember when you sold your last decency
When you're done, remember me.