

Goddess of the River

Burden Of Life

Goddess Of The River

Verse 1:

Silently waiting for the curtain to finally fall
For the door to be locked
For the writings on the wall

All the while you are standing with rope well in hand
The key is safely tucked away
The bricks look so blank and bland

Prechorus:

The beauty and the bard
Try a step or two within my mind

Oblivious to the anguish and confusion
They will leave behind

I'm begging you to let me go
Let me go

Chorus:

Eyes open wide
Behold your stars
This never-ending spell

Turning tides
To heal my scars
For I can't sustain it all
See me fall

Verse 2:

I don't even know why I'm biding my time
Draining my stamina and wasting my prime

Still not even 800 miles in between
Could manage to finally wipe this slate clean
Tabula Rasa

Bridge:

Will you call on me again
When dead leaves are covering my path

Goddess of the river
Sweep me away
Goddess of the river
Take me away

Lead: Schafberger

Verse 3:

Still I keep waiting for the curtain to fall
The door's still unlocked
No letters on the wall

All the while I'm bound to my abject routine
Painting blurred pictures of what could have been

I still keep on biding and wasting my time
Gazing at a mountain impossible to climb

Still not even 25 months full of shit
Could make me admit could make you commit

Prechorus:

The beauty and the bard
Try a step or two within my mind

Oblivious to the anguish and confusion
They will leave behind

I'm begging you to let me go
Let me go

Chorus:

Eyes open wide
Behold your stars
This never-ending spell

Turning tides
To heal my scars
For I can't sustain it all
See me fall
Fall see me
Fall
