

Splintered

Buried In Verona

I feel the cracks splintering through the foundation
Tried moving heaven and earth, but let's face it
You're only feeling alive if you taste death
Create your memories now or die faceless

Yeah I know you're hiding cause you're weak
You're wasting moments like they're nothing but dust in the breeze, do you ever dream
Do you ever think there's more to life than this

Never gonna get anywhere like this
Will you ever learn

I try, I try to push harder
I'm going against the grain
It's gonna be hard gazing up at the stars
Looking into forever

You, you're just a number in this world
Programmed from the day of birth
You need to find your self worth and live like it's the last day on earth

The crows finding it hard to resist you
They need their souls born and bred, conditioned
Run boy just as fast as you can
Head for the visions that you dreamt
While you still fucking can
