Back to the Start

Down, I've been down on myself I know there's a light, but I just can't tell Which way that I should run, After all that I have done Which road did I take, to get so far away From you

You can't remember my face The truth, it gets so hard to take and

You keep giving me chances I keep breaking your heart I wish there was a way we could do it all Over again Get back to the start

I've been looking for a friend In places I never should have been I stood there on the edge You tried to pull me in I keep dealing with the pain It seems to never end

You can't remember my face The truth, it gets so hard to take

You keep giving me chances I keep breaking your heart I wish there was a way we could do it all Over again Get back to the start

This wasn't the way it was supposed to be How can I see you if I can't see me?

You keep giving me chances I keep breaking your heart I wish there was a way we could do it all Over again You keep giving me chances I keep breaking your heart I wish there was a way we could do it all Over again Get back to the start

Burn Halo