

Damage (Collateral)

Caleb Hearn

I've seen broken hearts, nights sleeping in my car
When things just fall apart, when nothing seemed to last
I've had friends walk away when things didn't go as planned
I've thrown it all away, for that one in a million chance

And people always say they'd take a shot at starting over
And maybe so, but for me it always seems

Broken hearts just seem to always heal
Gotta watch it break to know it's real
And stars seem brighter sleeping by the steering wheel
Sometimes friends walk in then walk away
Well, they weren't meant for you anyway
It's all the damage in the end, that makes me who I am

It's all the damage in the end

See, I've lost count of the sleepless nights
Walked through hell maybe once or twice
But when life is cruel, just use it as collateral
Painful endings [?]
Get so close then I fall apart
I always end up on my feet somehow, 'cause

Broken hearts just seem to always heal
Gotta watch it break to know it's real
And stars seem brighter sleeping by the steering wheel
Sometimes friends walk in then walk away
Well, they weren't meant for you anyway
It's all the damage in the end, that makes me who I am

It's all the damage in the end, that makes me who I am
It's all the damage in the end, that makes me who I am
