

Death Deserves a Name

Can't Swim

Witnessing feeling of your discontent
While I try to mull it over all inside my head
I can't rebuild this mess I made
Distance between us has been so confined
Just the sound of your voice puts fire to my spine
I walked away, I walked away
I might never fall back asleep

Losing myself thinking of that place
The words you said when you saw my face
It's all been done
Finding it hard to forget her name
If I'm the stray, who's the one to blame?
It's all been done

Listing the problems that I should've known
Thought you said you would be fine
If you were on your own
I won't be there to catch your fall
Can I please undo what I've done?

A death deserves a name
I've got all my life to bear this pain
