

Honey Don't Jump

Capital Lights

Sad, broken soul, she's lost in a world so cold hearted
Not a lead, not a light to guide her out of this darkness
And she can't go on, no she can't go on
No she can't go on any longer in this depression
Down a road in the wrong direction
I say, 'darlin, put your raincoat on. I can see life is pulling you down
Flooded with lies and dangerous thoughts of taking the wrong way out

Honey, don't jump the gun
There's a life worth living on
When the world comes crashing down
In God's arms you're safe and sound
Let the love of new life spread
In the light, you'll walk 'til death
Then, arise, a forgiven soul
As Daddy says, 'welcome home and job well done
Oh, honey, don't jump the gun

A delivered soul, she walks in a world of new salvation
Planting truth, planting love, sprouting life throughout generations
And she can't go on, no she can't go on
No she can't go on without singing a song of redemption
If you're headed in a dark direction
She'll say, 'darlin, put your raincoat on. I can see you got your head in the clouds
I'm simply a light that guides you to life. He'll be the one to lift you out'

Alone in the dark, the eyes of your heart see only a life so broken
Step into the light, look up and you'll find a Father with arms wide open
God's got his arms wide open
God's got his arms opened up with love
So, honey, don't jump the gun
