Wasn't Born to Follow

Oh, I'd rather go and journey where the Diamond crescent's flowing And run across the valley Beneath the sacred mountain And wander through the forest Where the trees have leaves of prisms That break the light up into colors That no one knows the names of

And when it's time I'll go and wait Beside the legendary fountain Till I see your form reflected In its clear and jeweled waters And if you think I'm ready You may lead me to the chasm Where the rivers of our visions Flow into one another

And I'll stay awhile and wonder At the mist that they've created And lose myself within it Cleanse my mind and body And I know at that moment As I stand in that cathedral I will want to dive Beneath the white cascading water

She may beg and she may plead And she may argue with your logic Mention all the things I'll lose That really have no value Though I doubt that she will ever Come to understand my meaning In the end she'll surely know I wasn't born to follow

Carole King