Caroline's Spine

I've seen the writing on the wall I've tasted the dust to my lungs, Through my veins.

The wind has forced me to advance To where I'm standing As i turn around it erased my track. I feel the urge to move on But to behome eating sandwiches with "Ang & Barn" Home. i miss home.

So please see for me what i could be 61 open your gate Its all been the estate of mind

"Go and I'll time you", she said But she never looked at her watch. Little did i know she would become a memory To my lungs, through my veins.

So please see for me what i could be 61 open your gate Its all been the estate of mind

The trees look so small at night When the moon shines bright upon my world I've seen your world... to my veins

So please see for me what i could be 61 open your gate Its all been the estate of mind

61