Set Sail

Casey Barnes

We could sit and talk for hours
And we might never say a word
And those things you never told me
They were the sweetest things I'd ever heard Silence comes without a warning
No one never knows the time
Before you know it your in no real head
And treading water drifting with the tide

Set sail let the waves take you home
And every current lead you back where you belong
And I know when I'm lost and alone that your here you calm the storm
You calm the storm

Don't you hate the unexpected
Their creeping up their caving in God I feel so disconnected
I'm wide awake and I'm wearing thin
I can feel you like a shadow
I can see you in the dark and I remember everything that you we re
And all the little things that kinda see your heart

Set sail let the waves take you home
And every current lead you back where you belong
And I know when I'm lost and alone that your here you calm the
storm
You calm the storm

I can see you in the water
I can hear you in the whisper of the wind
When I'm looking at my daughter's
I know life is gonna come round again

Set sail let the waves take you home
And every current lead you back where you belong
And I know when I'm lost and alone that your here you calm the
storm
You calm the storm
