

How To Disappear

Casey

It's a slow ride, slipping out of focus
A steady decline, every day's the same

It aches until you tell yourself you can't feel it anymore
But it makes your shadow heavy as you drag it on the floor
And you're happy til you're not, then you're unsure if you ever were You're looking tired lately, is it getting hard to hold yourself together?

The vespertine reluctance to stay awake
And engage with anything you'd say
Are you keeping count of how often I dissociate
When asked "Is everything okay"?

When all I wanna know is how to disappear
Without leaving you to worry about me
It hurts to say, but I'm getting tired of
Of running away from the same pain
From the same pain

Sorry if I've been avoiding the question
Sorry if I've been avoiding the question

What if you woke up to an empty bed and a note that said
"Is it disregard or discontent, that lures a sparrow to its end?"
Sharp despair laid bare in the sunlight golden
Fractured glass on an afternoon of grief unspoken

Lately I haven't been myself at all
Sorry if I've been avoiding the question, I haven't been myself at all
Sorry if I've been avoiding the question, I haven't been myself at all

When all I wanna know is how to disappear
Without leaving you to worry about me
It hurts to say, but I'm getting tired of
Of running away from the same pain
From the same pain

Is everything okay? (Is everything okay? Everything okay?)
Is everything okay? (Is everything okay? Everything okay?)
Is everything okay? (Is everything okay? Everything okay?)
Is everything okay? (Is everything okay? Everything okay?)

Sorry if I've been avoiding the question
Sorry if I've been avoiding the question

When all I wanna know is how to disappear
It's all I wanna know
When all I wanna know is how to disappear
It's all I wanna know