

Lost In Echoes

Caskets

I think I lost my mind
Everything I knew came falling down
Anything I build comes crashing down
I'm pleading god not now
Save me from my sins before I leave
Free me from the weight so I can breathe

The more I fool myself
The more I feel it creeping in
I think I lost my mind again

Don't worry I'll be lost in
Echoes, be laughing
On my own
It's tragic, but it's the only life I know

What should I do?
What should I be?
I'm at a turning point right now
I'm so full of rage, too blind to see

The more I fool myself
The more I feel it creeping in
I think I lost my mind again

The more I start to fall
The more I don't see me at all
I think I lost my mind again

I keep picturing my ending
Beneath a yellow rose
I don't recall this type of feeling
A seed inside my bones
My soul's turned its back and left me
I burnt the bridge within
Just another waste of human
Weighing down this skin

And it pulls me further from the point that I belong
And all you wanna do is
Take me, break me, hide me away
Or you can shame me, blame me
Burn me at the stake on a lie
'Cause my own mind wilts at the thought
Of being alive
And that I'd like if I tried

The more I fool myself
The more I feel it creeping in
I think I lost my mind again

The more I start to fall
The more I don't see me at all
I think I lost my mind again