

Strangers

Catie Turner

I trust too easy, it's just one of my things
Just flash me some kind eyes and exchange some sweet words
And I'll be there to fight for you on a ring
And I'd love you too fast, and that's why it hurts
I ran the mile and won the race but you'd still never see me as first
That's why I think it's better off we go back to being

Strangers, erase the history between you and me
Oh strangers, without you my life I regained a sense of sanity
And even though there'll be a bullet size hole in my heart
It's easier this way if we reverse time and just restart
Oh no, as strangers

Maybe I'll sleep better at night
Without delusions of you holding me tight on my mind
And I won't have to plan out what I would say
When you come through your senses and realize I was there for y ou everyday
It crosses my mind more than I'd like to say
That's why, I think it's better off this way oh if we're

Strangers, erase the history between you and me
Oh strangers, without you my life I regained a sense of sanity
And even though there'll be a bullet size hole in my heart
It's easier this way if we reverse time and just restart
Oh no, as strangers

And I won't have to wonder what I did to make you have wondering eyes
If we're

Strangers, erase the history between you and me
Oh strangers, without you my life I regained a sense of sanity
Strangers, strangers, strangers
