

NPC

Cavetown

Nobody knows me
That's what they call me, you-know-who
Got a void for a body
No one can see me, not even you
I settle in
I light a salt lamp, blow the fuse
I pick my skin
Can't get comfy, no I refuse

I can't stand the space in between
Nobody sees what I see
Here I go on a plane again to a place
Where I literally live, still it's all new to me
Uncanny valley girl dream
The main character acting like an NPC
Everybody's at home or away or in some third place
But I live in the space in between
I live in the space in between
I live in the space in between

Not nobody for nothing
There's a hole in my stomach and it grew
From a tear to a chasm
Now I'm just like you

I can't stand the space in between
Nobody sees what I see
Here I go on a plane again to a place
Where I literally live, still it's all new to me
Uncanny valley girl dream
The main character acting like an NPC
Everybody's at home or away or in some third place
But I live in the space in between
I live in the space in between
I live in the space in between

Here I am
I was nowhere, now I live in you
A light you bent
You're the prism that I'm passing through

I can't stand the space in between
Nobody sees what I see
Here I go on a plane again to a place
Where I literally live, still it's all new to me
Uncanny valley girl dream
The main character acting like an NPC
Everybody's at home or away or in some third place
But I live in the space in between
Oh, I live in the space in between
