Fight This War

The feeling cold night Healing the whole night Waiting for the end to feel the light [?] burnout praying to come down No one needs to feel alone tonight

You fight this war to heal to bones And I'll fight this war to bring you home When we couldn't find the words to say Nothing seems to go your way You don't need to face this all alone I'll fight this war to bring you home To bring you home [?] burned out

The stains we leave our shadows on the ground Voices so loud The TV turned down Words we need just changing of the sound

You fight this war to heal to bones And I'll fight this war to bring you home When we couldn't find the words to say Nothing seems to go your way You don't need to face this all alone I'll fight this war to bring you home To bring you home

Show me there's a life worth saving Cause something in my mind's not changing Maybe there's a love to save a soul Show me there's a life worth saving Cause something in my mind's not changing Maybe there's a love to save a soul We couldn't find the words to say Nothing seems to go your way You don't need to face this all alone You never planned to leave this world You fight this war to heal to bones I'll fight this war to bring you home To bring you home
