

The Sky'd Become Teardrops

Charley Crockett

I woke up this morning, heard you outside
Said you'd be leavin' me behind
Said you were tired from all of the lies
The sky became teardrops, teardrops in my eyes
I just can't understand yet, why you wanted to go
I don't see no purpose for the seeds that you've sewn
I was tryin to tell you; if you leave I'll go blind, the sky'd become teardrops, teardrops in my eyes

If you'll be leavin' think you should know
You're gonna miss me after you go
Times an illusion, I'm sure you'll see, you think you can better you ain't never gonna be free cause you're blind
And I would die- the sky'd become teardrops, teardrops in my eyes
The sky'd become teardrops; in my eyes

(Well Jerry, your leg wigglin?)
