

Sink In

Charlie Cunningham

Wait 'till it starts to sink in
And take up the space that we're in
It's a promise to change your life
I know that it's dark where you've been
But wait 'till it starts to sink in
It's a promise to save your life

Because there's doors to open still in your mind
You've got places that you still need to find
But it's all just a wonderful surprise
The tears in your eyes
They're just divine

We can make it to the lies but then there's your film set
You'll have to think fast most of them they wind up dead
Have never seen nothing like this
It's falling like a feather into the fire
Fall together reconcile
It could be all just a wonderful surprise
The tears in your eyes
They're just divine

The more you think kids can never warn
And all that you did they forgot
You can tie to the same thing in a long time
The most divided
They fall like a feather into the fire
And fall together reconcile
It's all just a wonderful surprise
The tears in your eyes
They're just divine

There's doors to open still in your mind
You got places that you still need to find
It could be all of a sudden that you find
Tears in your eyes
They're just divine
