Crosses

Charlie Simpson

We walked all night between the train tracks
Looking at all the people rushing through the insignificance, w e hide

Oh and the summer it burned
Down on my obsession with you
I will never be alone

And I won't ever see
Forgiveness in the eyes of ones I seek
Is not enough that lord knows

That the crosses we keep are the one that we bare
Lord he knows that your one who is holding me

We called ourselves individuals
Yet all we do is follow each other around its so intoxicating
Yet are we all that same
Just different enough to be not be afraid of everyone around us

And I won't ever see
Forgiveness in the eyes of ones I seek
Is not enough that lord knows

That the crosses we keep are the one that we bare
Lord he knows that your one who is holding me

I never meant to hurt you
I only wanted to see enough of the pain we lost before
Is the pain you asked for only once
It’s a shame that you don't hear me
You never did listen to me any more
It was hard to make sense

And I won't ever see
Forgiveness in the eyes of ones I seek
Is not enough that lord knows

That the crosses we keep are the one that we bare
Lord he knows that your one who is holding me
