

Young Enough

Charly Bliss

Right
Luminous inside
I am diving to drown in you
The stripes, your eyes, your voice, the night
We're still young enough
To believe it should hurt this much
The stripes, your eyes, I always wanted to try

Right
Luminous inside
I am diving to drown in you
The stripes, your eyes, your voice, the night
Home
All the lights turned on
Do you remember running barefoot against the dark?
I elected to drown in you

And when the sidewalk ripped up our frozen feet -
I can't protect you now if I couldn't save you then
You were still just a kid
You're a beautiful boy
Crushing cigarettes just to prove a point

Feast for eyes, almost too alive
From gigantic down to the floor to sweat it out
Panicked, exploding
The headlights below us
I had to outgrow it to know or destroy you

Right
Keep me up all night
Every void 'til the afterlife
It's just the way your hair hangs in your face makes me wanna die
So come home
With the lights turned on
Do you remember running barefoot against the dark?
I elected to drown in you

And when the sidewalk ripped up our frozen feet
I can't protect you now if I couldn't save you then
I could never get in, I could never get back
He is full of the worst and he looks it

Whether under water or under me
I can't protect you now if I couldn't save you then
You were still just a kid
You're a beautiful boy
Crushing cigarettes just to prove a point

Wasted, shy
Almost too alive
From gigantic down to the floor to sweat it out
Nobody knows you, the weight of your trust
How I crushed and consumed you and loved you too much

Feast for eyes
How I changed your mind, but

Who am I if I don't have you now?
Nobody knows you
The fate of a crush
How I had to consume and destroy us

We're young enough
To believe it should hurt this much
Do you remember running barefoot against me?

And when the sidewalk ripped up our frozen feet
I can't protect you now if I couldn't save you then
You were still just a kid
You're a beautiful boy

We're young enough
