

Step To Far

Chemistry

A sandcastle washed away by the waves, and your heart, swept away by the wind
You gave me plenty of words, but no answers Every time a feeling of reflection comes, your footsteps go
I want to be a wind that crosses the sky, I want to be a sound that glides across the water I want to be a colour that overflows with light My voice, begging for something I don't have, can't do anything, so it just circles around I'm alone, bobbing up and down in the waves
The light that stains the sky in a pale purple colour makes me a little nostalgic
When the sea breeze gives way to the calm of the night, I'll launch a boat
It's too late for reflections, but I'll run to meet you I want a rainbow that will stay in your heart, I want wings that will cross time I want the words to say to you I'll become a little wave and envelop every nit of you
And then, swaying in the huge undulation
I'll close my eyes (5x)

Other Chemistry songs