

My Lover Lies Under

Cherry Ghost

Through the shadows of the old high rise
Cross the footnotes of self sacrifice
Some place, somewhere there are bluer skies
My lover lies under

Pass the battle hymns of late night bars
Through the endless lines of motor cars
There's a quiet night of quiet stars
My lover lies under

I do believe I've lost my faith in Hollywood
Those dreams upon the screen ain't for the likes of us
But I swear somewhere there is a heart that I could love
But sometimes I wonder

Passing the warring tongues and prying eyes

Through the subways and the city lights
Some place somewhere there are bluer skies
My lover lies under

I do believe I've lost my faith in Hollywood
Those dreams upon the screen ain't for the likes of us
But I swear somewhere there is a heart that I could love
But sometimes I wonder

Through the shadows of the old high rise
Cross the factory floors and the severed ties
There's a sunset in our paradise
That my lover lies under
My lover lies under

But sometimes I wonder
