

Thirst For Romance

Cherry Ghost

Remember me with a smile on my face replace the tears in your memory with two heroic arms that twisted lids from jars and dragged you home after drinking in the park

Remember me with the wind in my sails replace the night nurse that sits at my bedside with a whistling heart, that played piano in the dark and cheered you every step of the way

I still thirst for romance, I still thirst for romance and the sand between my toes darling I, I seen demons dancing, I seen demons dancing across factory floor

Remember me holding court in Henry's bar poking holes in the so-called left buried my mother, father, sister, brother, lover So why'd they treat me like a child?

I still thirst for romance, I still thirst for romance
and the sand between my toes
darling I, I seen demons dancing, I seen demons dancing
across factory floor

I still thirst for romance and the sand between my toes darling, I seen demons dancing across factory
floor
