

Until The End

Chloe Ament

Boy and girl lock eyes across a room
He swore her smile made flowers bloom
He'd pull her hair she'd chase him
Down the stairs, they're racing time

Years went by the boy's heart hadn't changed
But she'd start smiling when he looked away
Eventually, she caught up
Hand-in-hand they crossed the line

White dress in the summer
Their son had his mother's eyes

Until the end
Until the end
Until the end of time
Until the end
Until the end
Until the end of time

They lived free in the world they built for him
Oh, they lived free but the dark was closing in
He couldn't stand by and
She couldn't watch him die

Until the end
Until the end
Until the end of time
Until the end
Until the end
Until the end of time

Until the end
Until the end
Until the end of time
Until the end
Until the end
Until the end of time

Early twenties fighting for their lives
From dusk to dawn on the front lines
They sold their youth to take up arms
Broken bodies, broken hearts

Their friends that used to cheat on tests
Now twenty-one cheating death
Go out for drinks and laugh before
Losing their lives to settle scores

The boy and girl that found a way
Gave up their nights to dig their graves
They'd say goodbye to meet again
Neither had been prepared for when

The darkness cast the fatal blow
Oh, he bled out and she fled home
She raced to keep her son alive

And met her love on the other side

Until the end
Until the end
Until the end of time
Until the end
Until the end

Until the end
Until the end
Until the end of time
Until the end
Until the end
Until the end of time

Boy and girl lock eyes across a room
Too young to know they'd die too soon
