I know you said when I left

I'd regret every word, every breathe, every step, every minute without you

Go do what you have to

I know I said you were wrong I'd move on

It was only a matter of time, til I'd make it without you But this wasn't about you

I said I needed space, a change of place to go out and live my life

I don't wanna live without you anymore

And what I wouldn't give to get us back to the way it was befor e

I admit I was wrong all along now you're gone with all that I'd been living for

I don't wanna live without you, anymore

For a couple of nights I was fine

I was high off the wine and the lights and $my\ new$ found freedom , that I thought I needed

But that cold lonely room that I headed home to, it felt like a tomb

I just stared at the ceiling, what an empty feeling And baby I, apologize, and tell me its not too late

No, I don't wanna live without you, anymore
