

You're the One

Chrissie Hynde

You're the one, you're the one
You're the one, you're the one

Doesn't take a scientific mind
To see the change in me
Every cliché and quality you'll find
Describes me to a 't'

I was lost, but now look how I'm found
Right now I can't see
I was left but now look how I'm whole
You completed me

An ordinary cynic
Was all I ever was
Look at me I'm laughing like a child
And all of it because:

You're the one, you're the one
You're the one, you're the one

You may think I'm not serious
Or telling you a joke
All these proclamations
Will disappear like smoke

Well it's too late to turn back
Here's what you should do
Keep your eye on that bad penny
'Cause it's coming back to you

You're the one, you're the one
You're the one, you're the one

People say, your mistake
You're a dangerous lover
But you give, more than you take
You can't judge a book by the cover

And I can't take all the credit
But I found you when I thought
That a love like this was nothing
But a bargain left un-bought

You're the one, you're the one
You're the one, you're the one
You're the one, you're the one
You're the one, you're the one
