

Myself Again

Cimorelli

My bruises are finally fading
Maybe next time I won't fall
Somehow the world keeps on spinning
Even when yours falls apart

Somehow I keep on existing
Like the flowers I dried on the wall
The hardest part about living
Is learning how to be alone

But I just keep going the distance
Every step hurts a little less
It's normal to feel some resistance
When you're going past what you got left

I'm starting to feel like myself again
I'm starting to feel like myself again
Cause when you bend until you break
You see just how much you really can take
Nothing stays the same but you're okay
I'm starting to feel like myself again

All of the things I've been faking
I'm doing them without a thought
Can't deny the toll it's been taking
But in weakness you are made strong

Been wondering is it all worth it
How could someone be so wrong
But I think I'm still a good person
Despite it all

The rain came and it went
The night changed and I slept
I look in the mirror, it's not a stranger
I think I know her
I think I like her
Maybe she's someone
I could be proud of
Maybe there's some things
I'll make it out of

I'm starting to feel like myself again
I'm starting to feel like myself again