

Lay Low

Citizen

I don't know where you've been, I don't even know who you are
I don't know how you talk with those rocks in your mouth
But when I look around, you're nowhere to be found
You lost your self control, that's all on you now

You've been slowing down, tripping over yourself
Falling to the ground, you can get a grip or get out
It's been so long since you've been gone
Just a little is far too much of you

Why don't you bang this into your head?
Into your brain, right through your skull
Lay low
Never will or be again, never was before
Now you'll never know
Lay low

Though the shades are drawn, the light inside remains on
I feel a dagger come out the back of my throat
It's been so long since you've been gone
Just a little is far too much of you

Why don't you bang this into your head?
Into your brain, right through your skull
Lay low
Never will or be again, never was before
Now you'll never know
Lay low

Lay low
Lay low

Never will Never was Never will
Lay low

Never will
Never was Never will
Lay low
