

In the Birth of a Fawn

City of Caterpillar

Just once
Just once you told me
I don't want this anymore
Let it out
Let it out in an open mouth
Dripping from a black void
Fingers pressing in a freshness of life so stale
Tossing blood of the fawns
Teeth clenched, speeding up a one-way street
It's the end of a five year day

The silence is deafening
This silence is deafening
Accumulate to dissipate

Just once
Just won't you hold me
Hold me like the death
In the animals
Perfectly still
Blood glistens in the grace of a swan
Dripping red amphetamines
Lift inside of me
Piling limbs in the shattered sheets
In the mirror the pale figure stares

And we dance to the memories
It trembles on your silent lips
Trembles on your silent lips
Memories of death's kiss

In the lifting of dawn...
Let it out! Let it out!
I feel weaker than a fawn...
Tear it out! Tear it out!

Like the death in the animals
Tear it out! Let it out! Tear it out!
Hold me like the death of the animals
There's life in the sun

Like the death in the animals
Tear it out! Let it out! Tear it out!
Hold me like the death of the animals
There's life in the sun
This life has begun

In the lifting of dawn...
Tear it out! Tear it out!
I feel weaker than a fawn...
This love is stifling!
