

Dee, Forgiven

Clap Your Hands Say Yeah

Dee
Oh, Dee

For a moment I couldn't see thee
Disappear
Through the glass
But never fear
It'll pass

Red was the pillow
Under skull white sheets
Dead as a minnow
Washed right up by a bloodthirsty

Sea, oh well, forget the mirror
Forget touch
That was always too much
That was never enough to survive

Breathing in the morning
With cocaine's wooden stare
She snorted up all the wild honey
And said, "Please don't you tell all your"

"Friends that we're here, for now we'll"
"Be forgotten"
As we glide through the air
By the chin on our hairs
Like the skin on a pair of red eyes