

Dissolution Wave

Cloakroom

Never fought a battle I ain't already won, already won
Lately I've been getting a little hard to love, harder to drug
Everyone I know is getting harder to know
Maybe I should too

Never met a critter that I couldn't describe, couldn't describe
Never met a spring that I couldn't unwind, wouldn't unwind
I was twisting 'round on this tether of mine
Wrapped it 'round the world

Flora and the fauna out of places to hide, surface to mine
Of all the stellar wonders that somebody could like, meteorites
In the time it takes all these falling bodies to light
I'll name one after you
You could not hear what they say like I do

The world that I betray is not my own
Not my own
The world that I betray is not my own
Not my own

In my light-year grave all I've done
All I've done
The universe forgets all I've done
All I've done
Can you feel the ache stemming from an un beholden eye?
Past the mirrored lake, down a crystal spine

Everyone I know is getting harder to know
Maybe I should too