

You Could Have Been The One

Coasts

Remember when we were young
We were just kids with nowhere to run
All those nights at your house
It was 4 a.m. when you kicked me out

Our friends say we're perfect, two souls intertwined
A match made in heaven, just at the wrong time
The places we've been to, the times that we've shared
Should've promise I'd always be there

You could have been the one
But now I see you with someone else
I should've told you how
I should have told you how I felt

We used to dance out in the rain
I never wanted anything to change
So I read the letters that you wrote
Over and over till the corners broke

Our friends say we're perfect, two souls intertwined
A match made in heaven, just at the wrong time
The places we've been to, the times that we've shared

Should've promise I'd always be there

You could have been the one
But now I see you with someone else
I should've told you how
I should have told you how I felt

You could have been the one
But now I see you with someone else
I guess you're happy now
And I can only blame myself

You could have been the one
But now I see you with someone else
I should've told you how
I should have told you how I felt

You could have been the one
But now I see you with someone else
I should've told you how
I should have told you how I felt

You could have been the one
But now I see you with someone else
I guess you're happy now
And I can only blame myself
