

Wilderness

Cody Simpson

Have you been dreamin' of the wilderness
Have you been wonderin' how far it is
We will go, just to show, that we're the mightiest
On the globe, as it rolls, into oblivious
Have you been thinkin' 'bout the ocean too
There's heartless heads letting the oil through
Til the blue, isn't blue, will you take a stand
Tell the man, with a plan, to wash away the truth
Woah, wash away
Are you unconscious in your troubled mind
Don't forget mountains were made to climb
To the sky, that's where you'll find, crystal Clementine
Looking down, with a sigh, as she begins to cry
Then it rains upon the trees, with their roots still in the ground
Let the water trickle down into the thirsty river mouth
The sun will shine on through
Every shadow of a doubt
Save us from this endless drought
