

The Homecoming

Coheed and Cambria

We are a living absolute,
stuck in an anguished innocence.
This moment loved, I greet the sun
and wake from a war I could've won.

Well, in your arms I'll keep this memory to me.
This kitchen floor won't reveal all the things I've felt for you,
oh.

Please, level with me,
Understand that I'd do anything for you.
Seize any moment while you can.
This void is coming after you,
'cause loneliness is why you hurt.
Just don't kill the messenger.

The dust a-dance against my breath,
The world awakened, slowly dressed.
A life unanswered in the light
with questions scattered through the night.

And now my heart feels heavy,
The weight will drag me down.
You were the only reason the reason they'd find me here, tonight.

Please, level with me,
Understand that I'd do anything for you.
Seize any moment while you can.
This void is coming after you,
'cause loneliness is why you hurt.
Just don't kill the messenger.

Please, level with me,
Understand that I'd do anything for you.
Seize any moment while you can.
This void is coming after you,
'cause loneliness is why you hurt.
Just don't kill the messenger.
