

Two To Tango

Colby Acuff

She goes downtown late at night
When her husband is gone for work
Searching for her Romeo
But the booze and the neon lights is all she will find

She's out searching hard and long
It the same feeling on a couch back at home

Because it takes two to tango
And right now you're one sick heart alone
You're shining bright like the north stars in the sky
But the brightest starts always burn hot alone

He goes on trips to get away from her
He says "I'm story but my job is calling and I got to go"
Searching for his young Juliet
While his wife is home with Romeo

He's out searching all alone
It's the same feeling on a couch back at home

Because it takes two to tango
And right now you're one sick heart alone
You're shining bright like the north stars in the sky
But the brightest starts always burn hot alone
But the brightest starts always burn hot alone

He's out searching all alone
But It's the same feeling on a couch back at home

Because it takes two to tango
And right now you're one sick heart alone
You're shining bright like the north stars in the sky
But the brightest starts always burn hot alone
But the brightest starts always burn hot alone

I love that song