

Don't You Know

Cold Driven

Wake up
Don't you know who I am?

Waiting for heaven in this familiar place
Holding tightly to a familiar waste
Never thought I'd go this far
Never thought life could get this hard

And I could be waiting
I'm waiting half way down
Never live, never loved, never realized
I left a lot of lies and now I
Could I be failing halfway down?
It's always push or pull
Because I'm fighting for a life I know

Wake up
Don't you know who I am?

I keep breaking, keep breaking down
You know that I keep breaking, breaking down

And I could be waiting
I'm waiting half way down
Never live, never loved, never realized
I left a lot of lies and now I
Could I be failing halfway down?
It's always push or pull
Because I'm fighting for a life I know
I never realized, left a lot of lies
I keep breaking down

What's the verdict if I'm so faithless?
Don't I know who I am?
(With the weight of the world and the way
That life turns trying to make my voice heard
Don't you know who I)

Wake up
Don't you know who I am?
