

Heaven In Your Hands

Cold War Kids

In the land of the plenty, your cup is empty
So tired but waiting your turn
You tried being clever, down for whatever
How many times you've been burned

Now with random statistics, detached and cryptic
You only see the bad signs
The system is failing, can't stop despairing
Nothing is changing your mind

There's a moment when you got to ask
What if heaven was to fall right in your hands
When your walls come down and the lights go up
What if heaven was to fall right in your hands

Cast out and hopeless, we were the closest
When did everything change
Is it lack of religion that makes you willing
You spin like a whirlpool there

So shout what you're feeling, truth is revealing
There's so much beauty that remains

There's a moment when you got to ask
What if heaven was to fall right in your hands
When your walls come down and the lights go up
What if heaven was to fall right in your hands

There's a moment when you got to ask
What if heaven was to, what if heaven was to
There's a moment when you got to ask

There's a moment when you got to say what you want
Whoever it hurts, whatever the cost
When the love that you need is so hard to find
Get up off your knees and reach for the sky

There's a moment when you got to ask
What if heaven was to fall right in your hands

What if heaven was to fall right in your hands
When your walls come down and the lights go up
When your walls come down and the lights go up
What if heaven was to fall right in your hands
When your walls come down and the lights go up
What if heaven was to fall right in your hands
