

In Your Multitude

Conception

Another day reaches for life
And when I see you're not there
I hush the sunrise nails in my tired head
Wide awake wide awake remember

All how you laughed when you were near things
We never knew the dreams that we shared
Now I miss your warm embrace
Once in my life I could have had it all

Someone turn back turn back the time
I'd change tomorrow tomorrow
Once in my life I should have cried your name
Someone turn back the time

I know what went wrong
And I reach out for life
Try to catch that moment
Now I remember the outline of her face

I know the pain she must have felt
When I came too close
When she was close to me
When the stars would summon the angels

Once in my life I could have had it all
Someone turn back
Turn back the time
I'd change tomorrow

Tomorrow once in my life
I should have cried your name
Someone turn back the time
I know what went wrong

How I wish that you were here to fulfill the dreams
We never dared help me make it through
When the winter night is clear I see stars,
Adore their multitude
They shine for you and I