

Will You Remember Me

Corrinne May

Bare feet tickled by the powdery sand

Pressing footprints along the shore

A vain attempt to leave a testament

That I walked this path before

Will you remember

Will you remember me

My face on the water

Wrinkles with the tide

And vanishes from the ocean's silver screen

Like stars sprinkled in the sky

Forgotten when the sun appears

Will you remember

Will you remember

Wide-eyed wanderer

Search no longer

The light burns bright in you

So I'll leave this kiss wet on your face

My first born son

And pray the wind won't ever blow it dry

I'm sure Jesus had the notion

When it came His time to die

Will you remember

Will you remember me

Will you remember

Will you remember me
