Running From The Rain

Cory Morrow

As I gathered around the rusted window pane
Shutters leaving chills within my bones
I remember all you had to say to me
Said there ain't no point in running from the rain

Well, there ain't no point in running from the rain
Seems like it's gonna find you anyway
Listen to the message that I say
There ain't no point in running from
There ain't no point in running from the rain

You said the rain would come and take my hurt away
Every day will wrong, I'm soaked down to my soul
I listen as it sings to me a sad refrain
Said there ain't no point in running from the rain

Well, there ain't no point in running from the rain
Seems like it's gonna find you anyway
Listen to the message that I say
There ain't no point in running from
There ain't no point in running from the rain

I know I'm weary and I am down, yeah
Maybe God will let me drown, yeah
I won't have to feel the pain no more

No point in running from the rain
Seems like it's gonna find you anyway
Listen to the message that I say
There ain't no point in running from
There ain't no point in running from

There ain't no point in running from the rain
Seems like it's gonna find you anyway
Listen to the message that I say
There ain't no point in running from
There ain't no point in running from
There ain't no point in running from the rain
